THE EITI JOURNEY IN PNG

PNG started discussion on the EITI Concept (a global initiative established in 2002 with a goal to increase transparency and accountability across the oil, gas and mineral resources value chain).

A scoping study was conducted to determine the feasibility of PNG joining the EITI. The study found that PNG was already implementing some of the initiatives required by the EITI at the national level, although it was not yet an EITI member country.

The study also highlighted that implementing EITI would greatly increase transparency and accountability of the extractive industry revenue flows to the government and further down to local level governments.

Based on the findings, NEC Decision 47/2011 endorsed establishment of a State Working Group (SWG) to assess advantages and disadvantages of signing up to the EITI. The SWG engaged with participants of major extractive companies and civil society organisations to gauge their views.

After consultations, the SWG recommended to the Cabinet to implement EITI and approved to establish a Multi-Stakeholder Group (MSG) to develop a detailed work plan for Implementing EITI in PNG.

NEC Decision 90/2013 approved PNG to sign up to the EITI and endorsed Treasury Minister responsible for treasury matters to lead the Implementation of EITI in the country. Then Treasurer made public announcement on behalf of Government that PNG would sign-up to EITI.

End of 2013 PNG submitted its application to EITI to become candidate country. At that same time, PNGEITI MSG signed the MSG MoU that established a platform for collaboration of stakeholders in bringing revenue transparency and accountability of the extractive sector.

EITI International Board accepted PNG's application to be an EITI candidate country. PNG has so far published 5 EITI Reports and has undergone its First Country Validation.
